B&CE's New Board Structure

B&CE Benefits Schemes, the employee benefits provider to the construction industry, is pleased to announce a new Board structure.

The B&CE Board has agreed that each of these industry federations will nominate Directors to represent the employers on the Board from 8 December 2009:

Civil Engineering Contractors Association

National Federation of Builders

Scottish Building Federation

UK Contractors Group

National Specialist Contractors Council

Federation of Master Builders

This follows the intended dissolution of Construction Confederation from 31 December 2009.

UCATT, Unite and GMB will continue to nominate Directors to represent employees and work in partnership with the employer federations for the benefit of the industry.

The existing Board members will remain in position until February 2010 when some changes will be made.

As a not for profit organisation, B&CE has always been committed to serving the construction industry to ensure the personal and financial wellbeing of everyone within it. The new Board structure will help it to achieve this vision.

Sir John Chilcot, Chairman of B&CE, commented

"I am delighted that we have wide representation of the industry at a time of challenge and opportunity. I am confident that the new Board will continue the excellent work done by B&CE for the industry".

Brian Griffiths, Chief Executive Officer, commented

"Having the support of these organisations on the Board, and working closely with the other federations, should ensure that we continue to deliver tailored cost effective products and services for the benefit of employers and employees in the industry".
